Urdu poetry and gift of 90,000 books

By Peerzada Salman

MOHSIN Bhopali was a renowned post-independence poet and one of the first versifiers to write haiku in the Urdu language. After partition of the subcontinent, his family migrated to Pakistan. On Nov 24, 1975 a collection of Bhopali's Urdu poems titled Nazmaney was launched at the Karachi Press Club (KPC). Social thinker Sibte Hasan was the chief guest at the launch. Speaking on the occasion, Hasan exhorted writers and poets to utilise their literary talent in highlighting social and cultural conflicts and contradictions existing in society, because 'very few were attempting it'. He liked the way Bhopali exposed 'vice' in Nazmaney,arguing that the poet had tried to bring out those contrasts pretty sharply. Poet Rais Amrohvi described the book as a poetic and dramatic expression of events, pointing out that Bhopali had explored a new way of narrating short stories in verse. Critic Anjum Azmi said Nazmaney was a collection of satirical poems in which the poet had delineated day-to-day events successfully. Poet Himayat Ali Sha'ir was of the view that Bhopali through his latest work had achieved more success compared to his previous books.

The importance of the written word grabbed the headlines at the end of the month as well. On Nov 29, two helicopters of the United States Naval Ship 'Sacramento' airlifted 90,000 books donated by an American firm to Clifton helipad where they were received by Federal Education Minister Abdul Hafeez Pirzada. The helicopters made 35 flights in five hours from the ship anchored about 12 miles off Karachi shore to the helipad where a large crowd had gathered to watch the ceremony. Addressing them, the minister said books were a vital link to the success of educational programmes of developing countries, and that the donation by the US publishers — Harper and Row, now HarperCollins — would greatly benefit the students in Pakistan. He assured them that they would be distributed in libraries at educational institutions of the country in the shortest possible time for the students' benefit. The US Consul-General, Robert W Moore, who was with Mr Pirzada, hoped that the books, which were of a high school level, would be of great help as supplementary reading. He said it gave him pleasure to note that "this precious gift has been made available to Pakistan through the good offices of Pakistani and American Rotarians, the US Navy and American publishers".

Another prominent US citizen was in Karachi that week. On Nov 25, David Bell, a former economic adviser to the government of Pakistan in the 1950s, former head of USAID and (currently) Executive Vice-President of the Ford Foundation, visited the Applied Economic Research Centre at the Department of Economics, University of Karachi (KU). He was received by the director of the research centre Prof Ehsan Rashid and his colleagues. The foundation had instituted a special assistance programme at the university for the development of teaching and research in economics. The centre was being developed jointly by the government of Sindh, the University of Karachi and the Ford Foundation.

Mayor opens RO plant in Mauripur

By Our Staff Reporter

KARACHI: City Mayor Barrister Murtaza Wahab has inaugurated a reverse osmosis (RO) plant in the Mauripur area that would supply upto 100,000 gallons of clean drinking water daily to residents.

Addressing the ceremony, he said that the long-standing water supply issue faced by residents of Mauripur Grex Colony was finally being addressed.

"In line with the vision of Pakistan Peoples Party Chairman Bilawal Bhutto-Zardari, this RO plant will benefit four nearby communities and provide between 90,000 and 100,000 gallons of clean drinking water daily," he said.

He said this project by the Karachi Water and Sewerage Corporation was a milestone because, unlike conventional RO plants that treat groundwater, this plant draws seawater through a 5-kilometre pipeline.

"The seawater is desalinated using RO technology and supplied to the local population," he added.

"Access to clean water is a basic right, and the PPP is committed to ensuring this right through practical steps," he said.

The mayor noted that development work in the area, including road repairs, parks, playgrounds, sewage treatment plants and an additional RO plant, was under way.

A special development package for the people of Gabopat was also being prepared, he added.

Adab Festival ends

"Watch out", he warned, "it is also about Pakistan".

The launch of Amin Gulgee's Gulgee Museum — The Handbook was an arty affair with all his panellists, except Amin, hiding their faces in white veils. Later, the veils were removed though to reveal their identities as Niilofur Farrukh, Bina Shah, John McCarry and Adam Fahy-Majeed. It was a performance as well as discussion.

The 10th Adab Festival came to a close with a music concert by Saif Samejo.
